Chinese Waxen Melon – Citrullus lanatus var. lanatus (Melon) - This melon is an old variety that is grown in the tropics. It is a soft-skinned, round melon with a sweet, juicy, and aromatic fruit. It is typically grown in the southern United States and is used for fresh eating and dessert.

Jujubes - Ziziphus jujuba (Jujube) - Also known as Chinese dates, jujubes are a fruit that is native to Asia. They are usually small, round, and dark red in color. Jujubes are often eaten fresh, dried, or used in desserts and beverages.

Capers - Capparis spinosa (Caper) - Capers are small, white flowers that are harvested from the Caper bush. They are used as a spice and condiment and are often used in salads, soups, and sauces.
